What is Personality?

- Personality = an individual's patterns of thinking, feeling, and acting
- Four perspectives
 1. Psychoanalytic = unconscious processes determine personality
 - e.g.
 - * Anal retentive
 - * Orally fixated
 2. Humanistic = personality is determined by self and fleshed out by self actualization
 3. Social cognitive = personality is determined by beliefs about one's self
 - *e.g.
 - * Insecurity
 - * Belonging
 4. Trait = personality is determined by the presence of different types of traits

Psychoanalytic Perspective

- Essential premise is that psychosexual development is integral to our proper functioning
 - If something goes awry at some stage, you may develop a problem with that stage
- Techniques to discover psychosexual problems
 - Free association = the process of unearthing unconscious associations between ideas
 - * Basically, patient begins chaining ideas as they come to mind
 - Thought to be indicative of unconscious resistance
 - Dream interpretation = the process of understanding latent meaning in dreams
 - Hypnosis = inducing a mental state where the unconscious motivations and desires can be seen easier
- Unconscious = a storage space for repressed impulses
 - Repressed impulses = taboo thoughts, wishes, feelings, or memories
 - Is not available to the conscious mind; can only be seen indirectly

- Preconscious = a storage space for knowledge that can be invoked but not consciously so
 - Must be brought to memory by some stimulus
 - e.g.
 - * Events of the day so far
 - * Latent knowledge
- Three parts of personality
 1. Id = the element that composes our primal element of personality
 - Pleasure principle = the heuristic that immediate pleasurable is the most desirable good
 - At birth, the mind is only composed of the id
 - Sources of energy
 - * Eros = life instinct, perpetuate life
 - * Thanatos = risky, aggressive, self-destructive drive
 - Libido = roughly synonymous with “sex drive”
 2. Superego = the element that composes our moral intuition and aspirations
 - Moral intuitions are mostly inherited from observation and imitation
 - It has the power to generate anxiety
 - Morality principle = the heuristic that adherence to a code is the most desirable good
 3. Ego = the element that composes our conscious mind
 - Essential role is to balance the id and superego
 - Reality principle = the heuristic that external restrictions should be reconciled for maximum value
- Psychosexual stages = stages of development where the id focuses on one type of sensory pleasure

Five Psychosexual Stages

1. Oral = pleasures are principally derived from oral stimuli
 - Birth to 18 months
2. Anal = pleasures come from relief from ending discomfort associated with holding in waste

- 18 months to 36 months
 - 3. Phallic = pleasure comes from genitals
 - 3 years to 6 years
 - 4. Latency = a period of dormant sexual feelings
 - 6 years to puberty
 - 5. Genital = sexual maturation and seeking physical relationships
 - Puberty and after
 - Oedipus complex = the propensity for a young boy to experience sexual desire for his mother and hatred for his “rival” father
 - Based on the Greek myth of Oedipus
 - Electra complex = the propensity for a young girl to experience sexual desire for her father and hatred for her “rival” mother
 - Sometimes, your best ideas don't come while high on coke
 - * Freud loved him some coke
 - Castration anxiety = a young boy's fear that the father will castrate him for vying for experiencing sexual desire towards his mother
 - wat.
 - Penis envy = the effect of women feeling jealous of men for having a penis
 - Don't ask me. Freud was weird
 - Identification = the process by which the dominant parent's values bleed into the superego of the child
 - Fixation = the effect of having an unresolved conflict during some psychosexual stage
 - Results in a lack of closure—the person fixates on that conflict
 - It's important to note that most of these ideas have been discredited and aren't practiced by modern psychodynamic psychologists

Defense Mechanisms

- Defense mechanisms = methods of protection the ego employs to reduce anxiety by distorting perception

- Repression = a defense mechanism where anxiety-inducing thoughts are actively fought by the conscious mind
 - Results in those memories being still present, but only to the unconscious
 - Regression = a defense mechanism where an individual reverts to a psychosexual stage with an unresolved conflict
 - The individual feels less responsibility for their actions
 - Reaction formation = a defense mechanism where the ego substitutes taboo impulses for their opposites
 - Is a way to avoid situations
 - * For example, hiding an impulse that will lead to conflict with its opposite
 - Projection = a defense mechanism where taboo impulses will be attributed to others
 - Rationalization = a defense mechanism where unsavory reasons for one's actions are justified with logic rather than the emotions that really drive them
 - Displacement = a defense mechanism where aggressive or sexual impulses are directed towards a person or object that is less threatening
 - You deal with your anger at your boss by hurting your spouse, etc
 - Sublimation = a defense mechanism where harmful impulses are directed into a more socially appropriate activity
 - e.g.
 - * Lifting weights to deal with anger towards the bourgeoisie
 - Proletarian gains.
 - * Writing poetry to deal with inappropriate sexual impulses
 - Denial = a defense mechanism where the negative impulse is simply ignored
 - Is different from repression in that it can still be accessed by the conscious mind
 - * It just isn't acknowledged
 - Undoing = a defense mechanism where the guilt for indulging a negative stimulus is counterbalanced with a positive thing

Understanding the Unconscious

- Projective test = a psychological test where the interpretation of ambiguous stimuli is used to determine unconscious processes
 - e.g.
 - * Rorschach inkblot test = a test where 10 blots of ink are placed on a piece of paper and folded to form a symmetry
 - Developed by Hermann Rorschach
 - * Thematic apperception test (TAT) = a psychological test where spontaneously created narratives are used to determine unconscious processes
 - Shortcomings
 - * Examiner interaction may bias results
 - * Scoring and interpretation is very subjective
 - * Unreliable results
 - * Have no predicting power

Neofreudian Approach to Personality

- Alfred Adler
 - Believed that humans are motivated to be superior
 - * Pursued to compensate for feelings of inferiority or inadequacy when you're young
 - * Superiority complex = the effect of someone overcompensating for a traumatic failure by overemphasizing their achievements and importance
- Karen Horney
 - Believed that humans are motivated to have human love and security
 - * She studied anxiety relating to human relationships
 - * Basic anxiety = the basic sense of unease caused by being isolated and without help in a hostile and unforgiving, unloving world
 - Sought to counterbalance Freud's masculine bias
 - * Argued that Freud was wrong on
 - Penis envy
 - Women have weak superegos
- Carl Jung

- Universality of themes = a similarity of cultural knowledge of certain narrative tropes
 - * Archetypes = the preconceived notions of different roles that people can play
- Collective unconscious = a term for the storage space for these culturally acquired beliefs
- Persona = the outer behavioral pattern one adopts to hide their true feelings from others
- Is credited with coming up with the idea of introversion and extroversion

Humanistic Approach to Personality

- Self-actualization = the state of having fulfilled the need to realize one's potential
 - Can manifest in a lot of different ways
- Unconditional positive regard = a complete acceptance of another person
 - Is required to truly improve one's self
- Self-concept = the totality of our identity and notions of about who we are
- Spotlight effect = our propensity to overestimate the extent to which people judge us
 - We feel worse about our appearance, performance, and failures as a result
- Self esteem = one's notion of self worth
- Self-serving bias = the propensity for one to perceive their actions and thoughts in a favorable light
- Individualism = the behavior of emphasizing your own goals and basing your identity on individual achievements rather than on collective social goals or identity
- Collectivism = the behavior of emphasizing the goals of a social group and defining your identity in terms of that group
